The Lytle Creek Greenway Trail begins from the Trailhead Pavilion on David's Drive and follows Lytle Creek downstream from its headwaters to the point where it joins the 4C Bicentennial Bike Path. There are benches along the way, including one at the weir notch, the first soil and water conservation to be carried out in Clinton County.

The 4C Bicentennial Bike Path is a nice trail mostly through riparian habitat with some exposure to the Wilmington College farm fields. Wilmington College is the only private college in the state with an agriculture department.
